C, E HOW #6: Oral Health and NCDs: Lessons from the 2018 UN Meeting
Organizer: Peter Mossey (University of Dundee, UK)
Sponsoring Group/Network(s): Global Oral Health Inequalities Research Network, Nutrition Research, Behavioral, Epidemiologic, and Health Services Research
Description: The Political Declaration of the high level Meeting of the UN General Assembly on the Prevention and Control of Non-communicable Diseases (NCDs) on 19th September 2011 recognised in para 19 that “renal, oral and eye diseases pose a major health burden for many countries and that these diseases share common risk factors (CRFs) and can benefit from common responses to non-communicable diseases”
Tobacco and alcohol abuse are major contributors to oral disease such as periodontal disease and oral cancers, and an aspect of unhealthy diet is undoubtedly sugar, which contributes to the most prevalent of all NCDs, dental caries, but also to obesity, diabetes, cardiovascular disease and metabolic syndrome. These points were made in statements presented via the zero draft to the UNHLM forum in New York in September 2018, yet oral health failed to get a mention in the final draft of the resolution.
The oral health community is poised to make a significant contribution to the SDGs via ongoing global efforts and synergistic collaboration between WHO, FDI and IADR (now affiliates and members respectively) of the NCD Alliance. In alignment with other NCDs and trans-sectoral stakeholders and in dialogue with civil society the oral health community will embrace the CRF approach to prevent NCDs and reduce health inequalities.
This forum will highlight and brainstorm the areas of advocacy, collaboration and research that the oral health community should address to maximise its effectiveness as a partner in the NCD Alliance and to assist with policy development.

Presenters:

Moynihan: “A case for sugars reduction in achieving SDG3 for NCDs”
Bondioni: “What has Oral Health Community Learned from the UNHLM 2018?’
Renshaw: “How do we Improve Oral Health Advocacy via the NCDA?”
